move up here

TO CANADA'S TERRITORIES

The magazine designed to help meet northern staffing needs

About Move Up Here

Getting staff to fill vacant jobs is an ongoing challenge for northern businesses, government, indigenous organizations and NGOs. Why is this the case? Well, there are a number of reasons.

Firstly, there just aren't enough people in the North. Secondly, people who live here and who have the needed qualifications are already employed. And thirdly, southern job seekers know very little about the North and what it has to offer and are a bit wary about making a move so far outside of their comfort zone.

So where does this leave us? With delayed projects, thwarted expansions, businesses closing their doors, and hundreds of unfilled northern jobs.

Most northerners agree that we need more people if we want to grow our economies, but where do we find these people? Move Up Here wants to help you find potential employees.

In the late 19th century “go west” was the call to help populate our western frontier. Today we want “move up”, to be the mantra that resonates with thousands of Canadians, and urges them to consider a move to the far North.

Mandate

- To present the North as a great place to work, live and play.
- To place your job openings in front of high potential employees across Canada

Purpose:

To help northern private and public sector employers fill vacant positions so they can be profitable, efficient and prepared to handle future expansion.

What will Move Up Here Provide

- Informative content about living and working in the North
- Descriptions of northern services: health, education, housing, recreation
- Awareness of the many job openings in the North
- Awareness of northern economic growth
- Quick access to more information on job openings
- Ability to zero in on high potential markets for new employees

How will Move Up Here do this?

- Publish a mini Move Up Here magazine 3 times per year: spring, summer, fall
- Print at least 30,000 copies of each issue.
- Post a digital, free version of the magazine online
- Post all jobs included in Move Up Here on the Up Here website jobs page (This website receives over 15,000 unique visitors each month, with over 80% being new visitors)
- Promote Move Up Here on Up Here social media platforms and in our weekly newsletter
- Place Facebook ads in targeted distribution markets

What kind of content will there be in Move Up Here?

- Articles about people who've moved to the north for a year and stayed a lifetime
- Service pieces. People won't consider a move until they know about northern health care, education, housing, transportation, recreation, taxation and more.
- Articles about the northern economy and the job market
- Lots of information about weather, distance, isolation, northern demographics and other perceived deterrents to a move north, countered by information on northern shopping, libraries, theatres in larger communities....and the challenges in smaller communities.
- And of course, your ads about public and private sector job openings. From skilled professional jobs, to entry level service jobs..... recurring employee needs, put before a much larger audience, and targeted to people most likely to respond to your type of needs.

What Move Up Here won't do

If you need an employee next week, Move Up Here can't help you. But if you have ongoing needs for tradespeople, miners, engineers, IT specialists, bookkeepers, and much more, we can help you attract applicants for ongoing openings.

For example, if we have advertisers looking for people with mining experience, we'll distribute to smaller communities with active or recently closed mines. If we have advertisers looking for social work graduates for entry level positions, we'll target universities that offer social work courses.
